History

#1 - 09/15/2016 05:35 AM - duerst (Martin Dürst)

In some cases, there may be no way anymore to access the information, but the LEGAL file may still need to document where we got the information from. That means that we may need to keep the dangling links because we have nothing better. Maybe we can add something like "accessed at DATE" or so.

#2 - 09/15/2016 10:03 AM - vagish (Vagish Vela)

We can also attach wayback machine links such as <http://web.archive.org/web/19990429082237/http://www.math.keio.ac.jp/matumoto/emt.html> (for random.c → <http://www.math.keio.ac.jp/matumoto/emt.html> □□□□□□□□).
We can only do this for links we can find.

I can do this and submit a patch? Haven't done this before.

#3 - 09/16/2016 03:04 AM - shevegen (Robert A. Heiler)

The wayback machine idea sounds good.

In addition to that, perhaps for links that may no longer exist, one could mention the year where it last worked or so, just as a rough guide for people who may want to find out when something became obsolete (I mean the link itself).

#4 - 02/21/2018 07:12 AM - hsbt (Hiroshi SHIBATA)
